

European Evangelical Alliance General Assembly 2019

11-14 June 2019
Bad Blankenburg / Germany

Editorial

Dear friends,

the topic for this year's General Assembly is "On the road home: How to journey safely". People do want to journey safely and a lot is being done in so-called risk management by governments, companies and other bodies do make this happen. This causes all kinds of dynamics and we will wrestle with them in order to:

- Understand from history how people have 'journeyed safely' and how they continue to strive for it.
- Understand from a biblical perspective the responsibilities and opportunities the Church has concerning 'journeying safely' within nations.
- 3. Understand the role of the Evangelical Alliance at all levels, including its networks and affiliated members, of how it can best support the local church in its response to security and safety.
- 4. Develop a declaration on the topic 'On the Road Home: How to Journey Safely' to guide Evangelicals in Europe to speak with a message of Hope on security from a biblical perspective.

I am probably safe to say that this will be thought provoking and inspiring!

So, let's journey together these few days with the expectation to receive insights to help the church and society journey safely.

Blessings,

Thomas Bucher

General Secretary European Evangelical Alliance

Session Descriptions

Wednesday 12, June 9.30 – 11.30

Group 1: Journeying safely. Security & Safety and Our Communities & Nation

This group focuses on security and safety in relation to our communities and nations. We discuss how security and safety are defined within communities and nations, how nations address questions related to security and safety and what are the biggest threats depending on the group of people one looks at (young, old, rich, poor, female etc.). The question where people put their trust for their security and safety is paramount here. Equally, the role of fear and its impact on individuals and communities will be addressed.

Group 2: Journeying safely. Security & Safety and Ourselves & Our Churches

This group analyzes how the Bible defines security and safety and where security and safety can be found. The discussion invites participants to ask themselves: in whom do I / or my congregation place our security and safety – for my life, my family, community, prosperity, health? Moreover, we want to reflect on our understanding of security and safety, and whether it is healthy or needs adjusting. We address the difference between trust in God and naivety and how to find peace with the reality of uncertainly and evil.

Choose between the two discussion groups.

Wednesday, June 12, 15.00 – 17.00

Group 1: What should our authorities do to strengthen security and safety?

Led by Julia Doxat-Purser

- What are good policies to strengthen security and safety? E.g. from terrorism, from crime.
- Where do the limits lie politically balance of security and safety versus justice, freedom and righteousness?

Group 2: Getting the balance right between security and Freedom of Religion or Belief (FoRB).

Led by Arie de Pater

- Freedom of Religion or Belief is in danger because of fears about security (genuine fears or an excuse to control).
- Where do we see governments getting it wrong in their efforts to preserve security and safety?
- What are sensible policies?

Group 3: Living dangerously in a dangerous world.

Led by Connie Duarte

- Looking together at the seven churches in the book of Revelation and discovering how each church lived dangerously for Jesus (or not) in a dangerous world.
- Discovering the lessons that each church was challenged with in regards to the Gospel and their safety.
- Applying the truths of Scripture to our lives and to our churches as we too are asked to live dangerously in a dangerous world.

Thursday, 13 June, 11.20 – 12.10

Being Good News People. Our role in strengthening security and safety and helping people not to fear.

Christians can actually strengthen security and safety through our actions and words. We can also help people overcome fear.

This group work considers the possibilities for Christians, a local church, the churches of a town, specialist ministries or the National Evangelical Alliances in strengthening security and helping people not to fear. Moreover, we want to discuss the positive biblical values we can model and spread which will make society feel more secure and be more secure.

Thursday, 13 June, 15.15 – 17.00

Finding Common Ground and New Opportunities to Work together: Interaction time between National EAs, Affiliates and Networks

The aim of the session is to establish a living dialogue between the National EAs/Affiliates and the Networks, offering space and time to address options for cooperation with NEAs in a concrete way. This session is primarily about networking, while also offering the opportunity to address the main topic of the 2019 GA: "On the road home: How to journey safely".

Speaker Bios

Thomas Bucher

Thomas Bucher, born 1956 loves to be where the action is. God has often put him into situations, sometimes quite untidy ones, where his skills in growing and implementing vision and helping organisations to grow to the next level were well put to work.

Over the years the roles were many and often parallel. A selection: OM: COO and then National Director in Switzerland (18 years), OM Western European Director followed by associated European Director (9 years). Evangelical Alliance: Swiss National Board (10 years and 6 of those as chairman), European Evangelical Alliance board and now General Secretary since September 2013. Tearfund: Board (11 years, 4 of those as chairman). I have also started various projects, one of the latest being Mission-Net, a European youth mobilisation event and movement.

As a chairman of a local reformed church, Thomas faces the opportunity of living in an area with 40% immigrants. Being exposed to grass root questions and also having the possibility to see issues from a European perspective gives me very practical insights.

Coming from an organisation with many pioneers he has developed a concern to make sure good foundations will be laid and the respective processes developed. This includes getting the right leaders in place which suit the stage of organisational development and thus grow to the next stage.

Thomas is married and has four married children and two grandchildren.

Helen Calder

Helen is the author of the Helen's Headlines website www.helensheadlines.net. At one point she was the only female senior manager in an organisation with 6,000 employees. As part of a calling to use her business skills in the Christian sector Helen studied theology at St John's College Nottingham, specialising in pastoral care of the dying and bereaved. She has a passion for effective management in Christian organisations and for getting the right balance between faith and sound financial management.

Helen was part of the ministry team at All Souls Church, Langham Place as director of administration from 1991 to 1999. She worked for the UK Evangelical Alliance from 1999 to 2016 as executive director: finance and services. In these roles her responsibilities included finance, HR, facilities, IT, team management, programme management, risk management, governance and as a member of the leadership team.

Helen now has a part time portfolio under the banner of Calder's Consultancy: Sharing 40 years' experience to equip charities, churches and individuals. She mentors women in leadership roles, trains charity trustees and writes resources. She has developed and runs the Transitions course for those preparing for retirement.

Helen has been a trustee of several Christian charities and a PCC (parochial church council) member of three Anglican churches in the UK. She is currently a board member of the European Evangelical Alliance.

Helen's hobbies include giving hospitality, walking, reading, opera at Glyndebourne and wine tasting. She is actively involved in her local church and in building community where she lives.
